New York, NY	Corporation for Supportive Housing (Pay for Success)	This project will provide technical assistance to government and nonprofit organizations, building their capacity to pursue PFS pilots that improve outcomes and reduce costs for high-cost vulnerable populations, namely homeless individuals, youth and families, and disabled residents of health care institutions who prefer to live in the community. CSH aims to prepare a range of government and nonprofits to engage in PFS transactions by identifying evidence-based preventive interventions; conducting feasibility studies; preparing for PFS implementation; and analyzing alternate social finance strategies. This project will select up to 12 Sub-Recipients to receive a customized package of technical assistance and participate in peer learning initiatives. Based on CSH's work in this arena for the past three years, CSH believes that PFS financing can serve as a lever for changing how government allocates resources, shifting from high cost, crisis systems of care to less expensive, community-based interventions, namely supportive housing.

Hauppauge, NY	Long Island Housing Partnership Capital Impact Partners	Long Island Housing Partnership is building a body of evidence for how shared equity affordable ownership models contribute to neighborhood stability, affordability, and participants' long term economic well-being.
New York, NY	Single Stop USA GreenLight Fund	With its subgrant to Single Stop USA, GreenLight's SIF Initiative will support the expansion of its program services, which provide financial assistance to students through a connection with existing, scalable public resources, to Philadelphia, PA. Single Stop expects to serve over 31,000 students during the five-year engagement. Single Stop will partner with the Community College of Philadelphia (CCP) to provide students and their families with free on-campus services and access to additional community resources such as tax preparation, financial counseling, and legal services that help students stay enrolled in school. By using its web-based screening platform and case management system, the Benefits Enrollment Network (BEN), community college staff can quickly determine student eligibility for a range of public benefits and services, including food stamps, health insurance, tax credits and other benefits. Single Stop not only helps students access financial resources and benefits, but also provides critical support services and capacity building to the executive leadership teams and boards of college partners as well as data analysis services to operations personnel. As a result of the Social Innovation Fund, Single Stop has been able to expand its services significantly and in 2011 alone, it helped more than 140,000 families and students access more than $425 million in benefits and services. These numbers indicate that Single Stop at community colleges is a powerful intervention that works to alleviate poverty in the short term by providing students and their families with access to critical benefits and services that supplement their income and in the long run by helping students stay in school and graduate, thus increasing lifetime earnings. Single Stop's expansion to Philadelphia through GreenLight's SIF Initiative will accelerate its continued growth nationally. The committed matching support from CCP ($1M over five years) will support Single Stop's strategy of increasing college investment in its services and the GreenLight award will provide the opportunity to conduct an impact evaluation to confirm how Single Stop affects students' academic success in three particular ways: credit accumulation, persistence, and degree completion.
New York, NY	YearUp GreenLight Fund	With its subgrant to Year Up, GreenLight's SIF Initiative will support the expansion of its Professional Training Corps (PTC) to Philadelphia, PA, which combines skills training, college credit accumulation, and career trajectory work experience for low-income young adults. Year Up aims to serve 1,200 young adults (ages 18-24) in Philadelphia over the five-year engagement. Year Up's PTC resides in two-year colleges and provides the opportunity for a cohort of fulltime college students to earn credits by engaging in a year-long program that begins with PTC coursework and is followed by a six-month, fulltime internship in a professional-sector career. PTC aims to meet student outcome targets that include employer satisfaction, college graduation, job placement, and attaining long-term financial sustainability. Year Up's expansion of its PTC to Philadelphia through the GreenLight SIF Initiative is part of its "Million Person Model" strategy focused on scaling to serve 100,000 low-income, minority young adults per year by putting them on a clear pathway to obtaining a degree and developing relevant professional skills. Year Up's traditional program model has been proven to boost a young adult's annual earnings by an average of 30 percent. As PTC is an adaptation of that model, the SIF evaluation will help to develop a differentiated research base to test how the adaptation impacts success. The evaluation will also lend key evidence to the fields of college persistence and employment by identifying the impact of college engagement and internship experience on various employment outcomes, including wages and career trajectory.
