Philadelphia, PA	ActionAIDS AIDS United	ActionAIDS, a Philadelphia-based HIV/AIDS service organization, is implementing an intensive case management program designed to increase the rate of retention in health care for individuals who have been recently released from the Philadelphia Prison System. During the formative phase of this program, ActionAIDS designed an acuity assessment instrument that identifies clients at intake who present the greatest risk of being lost to care. These clients then receive intensive "Care Coach" case management services, expedited housing and behavioral health services, and related support to remain engaged in care. ActionAIDS is joined by three other nonprofit service providers to help transform the delivery of services to recently incarcerated clients, as well as services to other clients who have mental health or drug and alcohol issues and who lack stable, affordable housing. The primary goals of the project are to identify sub-optimally engaged PLWH and link and retain them in care; increase the number of formerly incarcerated PLWH who obtain/maintain safe and affordable housing; increase the number of formerly incarcerated PLWH who participate in back-to-work programs; and reduce recidivism for formerly incarcerated PLWH
Harrisburg, PA	Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Harvard Kennedy School Social Impact Bond Lab	The SIB Lab will work with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on exploring state-level Pay for Success projects. Potential policy areas for Pay for Success projects include, but are not limited to, early childhood care and education; education, workforce preparedness and employment; public safety, including programs that reduce recidivism; health and human services; and long-term living and home- and community-based services. Once policy areas and possible projects are selected, the SIB Lab will use available data and evidence to conduct a feasibility analysis of the proposed projects using the PFS model. The feasibility analysis would focus on supporting Pennsylvania in developing five main aspects of the PFS transaction: (1) assessing whether the proposed interventions produce the desired outcomes; (2) confirming that the likely outcomes satisfy cost-benefit principles; (3) developing an efficient and effective payment structure within a PFS model; (4) insuring that there are adequate service providers that can deliver the desired outcomes; and (5) establishing rigorous evaluation criteria and metrics to measure the initiative's outcomes.

Philadelphia, PA	Philadelphia Youth Network Jobs for the Future/OYIF	The Philadelphia Youth Network and its partners in the Project U-Turn collaborative are implementing and expanding postsecondary bridging services at four “E3 Centers” to increase postsecondary persistence and success for a very challenged population. E3 Centers are neighborhood-based service sites designed to help lower-skilled out-of-school youth and youth returning from juvenile placement to build literacy, numeracy, and 21st-century skills, attain a high school credential, and prepare for postsecondary education and careers. These Centers serve a high concentration of boys and men of color. Through the OYIF SIF, the Philadelphia partners are creating a structured postsecondary bridging program to ensure a smoother pathway from secondary to postsecondary credential attainment. Specific features include supported dual enrollment, a focus on college knowledge and success strategies, and personalized guidance and connection to “best bet” postsecondary programs of study that lead to credentials that will pay off in the labor market. Philadelphia Youth Network and its partners expect to scale the effort by creating a replicable model for postsecondary preparation and bridging in the context of the E3 Centers, and by leveraging the partnership’s collective impact approach to ensure that local, state, and federal resources are allocated to programming for opportunity youth.
